Reflections from the author

Anybody can get a date on the internet! However, finding the right person to date is far more challenging. It's all about purpose — your purpose for dating and your purpose in life.

Consider this: You are extraordinary and you have an extraordinary life purpose to fulfill. Dating the wrong people, or worse, marrying the wrong person, can distract you or derail you from your right purpose and the things you are meant to do and accomplish in this life. If you've ever been divorced you already know that.

Whether your purpose for reading this book is the ideal fun date for the occasional Friday night or your one and only soul mate, you'll find expert advice on how to e-date safely and effectively and save yourself time, energy, money and potential heartache. As the title of this book suggests, we want to help you find your perfect love match, whatever that means to you.

Introduction

Welcome to the new conventional dating

ONLINE DATING: BETTER THAN BLIND DATES, BUSINESS OR BARS

When you're ready for love, you simply put it out there and love finds you. Right? I used to joke that when the time was right the Divine (the universe, God, or whatever you call it) would just deliver him to my doorstep. A few years, a lot of dates and two failed relationships later, the joke was on me. I was still seeking the love of my life, and the only person I saw when I rushed to the door was the FedEx man. What's worse, I couldn't get a quality date.

Everyone likes to think of the prom queen sitting at home on a Friday night crying in her soup. The truth is, she probably is. Why? Because the guys she wants to date don't ask! They figure she's already got a date with the local super-jock, or they won't risk rejection because they think she's out of their league.

Know who you are and what you really want

Suddenly you realize you're one single person looking for a date. You're standing in a crowded room full of thousands of strangers. The crowd is a mix of men and women, gay and straight, tall and short, younger and older, of various backgrounds, looks, interests and intentions. What do you do? You could work the room questioning each of them if they are married or single, or even the right age. Or maybe you could chit-chat with each one to see if you have enough in common to know if it's someone you'd like to date. If you had the courage to walk up to a total stranger and start inquiring, how many of them even fit the basic criteria? How many could you connect with and how do you convey who you are before "the one" you are potentially looking for leaves the room? Online dating can be as hit or miss as the real dating
